Some people call corn "maize." Stacey Necaise, of Southern Promiseland Farm, in Kiln, decided to take it literally.

Beginning on Sept. 10, Necaise will open an eight-acre corn maze featuring three miles of pathways. Admission is $7 for children aged 5-11, and $10 for kids 12 and over. Children under four get in for free. Other activities will include a hay maze for younger children, hayrides, a trike track, farm animals, a play area, a pumpkin barn and a concession stand.

Necaise said Friday that she wanted to create an activity that both adults and children of the community can enjoy.

"I'm hoping to do something for our families," Necaise said. "My husband and I are always trying to find things we can do with the kids."

The Hancock County Board of Education addressed policy issues and the special education department's Opportunity Center during their Thursday meeting.

Despite recent controversy surrounding the Opportunity Center, which provides instruction to students alternative studies program, no new action was taken.

According to Board President Peggy Ladner, the board discussed the prospect of relocating the center.

"There was discussion but no action. It was suggested that the site of the Opportunity Center be moved to the old Alternative School building. I would like to see the board visit the site and determine whether or not it would be feasible to re-

Casino planners, Clermont Harbor residents trying to come to terms

'Adult entertainment,' sheer size of project are still major concerns

BY BENNIE SHALLBETTER
Staff Writer

In just a few short weeks, Hancock County Supervisors will decide whether they will allow a casino and hotel development at the foot of Bolsonet Ave. in Clermont Harbor.

Initial proposals for the two-tower, 14-story hotel and casino barge were met with less than enthusiastic responses from many nearby residents.

Wording in the plans also mentioned "adult entertainment" venues, which drew even more negative public opinion in the wake of a previous proposal for a strip club by one of the casino partners, Kirk Ladner. Ladner's appeal of a recent planning and zoning decision not to allow the club will be heard at another time.

Principal hotel/casino partner Russell Reg. Elliot told supervisors on Thursday that he wanted to make it clear that he was in no way connected to any proposals for such a business. He said the entertainment would be similar to other casinos along the coast.

Last week, Elliot and Ladner met with the Clermont Harbor Civic

The Mississippi Gaming Commission confiscated or destroyed approximately 35 gambling devices in Hancock County raids Wednesday night, according to sheriff's department Chief Investigator Kenny Hurt.

"The sheriff's department was requested by the Gaming Commission to assist in the rounding up of the illegal devices at 12 locations throughout the county," Hurt said.

Twelve misdemeanor citations were issued in connection with the roundup with scheduled appearances in Justice Court, Hurt added.

With a rumble and a rush of water vapor, the Space Shuttle's Main Engine (SSME) reached a historic milestone Thursday, Aug. 19, when a flight acceptance test was conducted at NASA Stennis Space Center (SSC). The engine tested Thursday is the final of three engines that will carry the next Space Shuttle into orbit. The engine will be shipped to NASA Kennedy Space Center in Florida for installation on Space Shuttle Discovery for STS-114, NASA's Return to Flight mission. STS-114 is scheduled for launch no earlier than Spring 2005. The engine test, which began about 8:10 p.m. CDT, ran for 520 seconds, the length of time it takes for the Space Shuttle to reach orbit. All SSMEs are test-fired and proven flight-worthy at SSC in South Mississippi.

Stennis helps NASA return to flight

BY JOHN WATERMAN
Staff Writer

The final space shuttle main engine (SSME) for NASA's "Return to Flight" campaign was successfully tested on Wednesday.

The engine will be attached to the Space Shuttle Discovery, which is scheduled to launch sometime in March of 2005. It will be the first flight since the Columbia crashed last year.

Admiral Tom Donaldson, director of Stennis Space Center, said the Return to Flight program was the necessary first step in continuing the exploration of space. As such, he said, the engineers testing the rockets took their responsibilities very seriously.

"Stennis us all about the power end of the space shuttle, and the special cargo of the astronauts at the other end."

Donaldson estimated that NASA had about 28 space flights left to complete their obligation to the International Space Station. Every engine for each shuttle would be tested at Stennis.

Donaldson added that the "Return to Flight" had been delayed so NASA could prepare two other shuttles, the Atlantis and the Endeavor, to be on standby in case the Discovery crew had trouble on re-entry.

After that, NASA has its sights set on Mars. Donaldson said the International Space Station would be instrumental in determining how humans could cope with extended periods of time in space. An expedition to Mars, he said, could take up to nine months.

To demonstrate the distance between the Earth and Mars, Donaldson said that the distance a shuttle would have to travel to get into orbit was about the width of a thumbnail measured on the surface of a golf ball. The distance from the earth to the moon would be about an arm's length away. Mars, he said, would be a half-mile from the golf ball.

Dave Geiger, the site director for Boeing, described the SSME as "the Ferrari of rocket engines."

It stands about six feet tall, has 470 million horsepower, and is capable of going from zero to 36,000 RPM in one second.

Geiger, who has been working on rocket engines since the Saturn 5 project in the 1960s, said the current SSMEs were the most reliable and complicated rocket engines in the world.

Stennis, for that matter, is the only facility equipped to test the engines for the full eight minutes and forty seconds it takes to bring the shuttle into orbit, thanks to the fuel barges that are brought in through Stennis's system of canals.

Geiger said the longest successful rocket test at Stennis ran for 33 minutes.

State, Bay urging all to aid in 'water watch'

BY MARY G. SEILEY
Staff Writer

State and local officials are waging a "water watch" program to help stave off terrorism.

It's a way the "nosey neighbor" syndrome can be turned into a positive thing, says Shelia Williams, a regional engineer with the state Department of Health's Division of Water Supply.

Some 5,000 "Mississippi Water Watch" brochures have been distributed so far to officials in charge of about 1,500 water systems throughout the state, said Williams. In turn, state officials hope that local officials will pass along the brochures to the public, she said.

Another printing is in the works for further distribution, said Williams.

Bay St. Louis officials have copies available at the counter in City Hall Annex, hoping that citizens who pay their water bills there will pick up a copy and heed its message.

"With all that's going on in the world," said Vanney, we hope that if anyone sees something going on, they'll give us a call."

The brochures note that water supply facilities can be "high risk targets for terrorists and other criminals. Many water systems in Mississippi are rurally located. Your help is vital to ensuring safe water."

Officials are asking that neighborhoods organize "water watch" programs, and familiarize their members with the water facilities and officials responsible for the facilities.

Any suspicious activities should be reported, the officials say, outlining what type of information to gather on anything suspicious. For instances, strangers climbing or cutting fencing around water system facilities should be reported, as well as unidentified vehicles parking or loitering near water facilities for no apparent reason.

People climbing on top of water tanks or taking photos or video shots of water system facilities also should be reported. So should any "suspicious opening or tampering with valve covers, fire hydrants or other water system components," the program advises.

The Bay St. Louis version of the brochure lists local emergency numbers to report suspicious activities. The city operates four water wells and two water towers in its system.

Williams said she once was waiting to meet a water system operator at a facility, and was surprised by a sheriff who pulled up to question what she was doing. A citizen had properly called the authorities, she said, because her unfamiliar vehicle was parked near the water facility.

Bay allocates $100K for sidewalks

BY MARY G. SEILEY
Staff Writer

Bay St. Louis officials think they have an extra $100,000 they might earmark for a major new sidewalk construction program.

That sum could swell even further if state and regional officials agree to expand allocations to the city, and accept the $100,000 as a local match.

The possibilities were discussed as City Council gave approval Tuesday to a professional services contract with Digital Engineering Inc., for the Main Street resurfacing and upgrade program. The engineering firm, which already has started on the field work, is estimating total costs of the project at $900,000.

That's $100,000 less than earlier projections of the Main Street program's costs. Mayor Eddie Favre said Tuesday that the city will seek a "reallocation" of the $100,000 to a sidewalk construction program, possibly winding up with $250,000 on a cost sharing basis with the Mississippi Department of Transportation.

Meanwhile, the city will seek state approval of the Main Street program's details, so the project can be engineered and put up for bids.

Preliminary plans call for upgrading Main along its entire 6,800-foot stretch between Highway 90 and Beach Boulevard. The scope of work includes minor drainage improvements, videoing and cleaning sewer and drainage trunk lines underneath the roadway, and sidewalk replacements. Curbs and gutters, and new sidewalks will line the resurfaced, and re-stripped route.

Projected costs come to $899,829, including $123,500 for Digital's services and a construction resident inspector.

Bay St. Louis had earmarked $100,000 of a $2 million general obligation bond it passed last year to finance a citywide street resurfacing program. That $100,000 was used as a local match when the city got an $800,000 state allocation for the project.

In another money matter, council members bemoaned the prominent rumors now afloat that the state may try to cut into local governments' casino receipts. Ward 1 council member Doug Seal said he's carrying around a laminated copy of a news article concerning the potential local revenue loss — and using it as a great example of why Bay St. Louis needs to succeed with its current annexation drive.

The city, he said, needs new territory to expand its commercial base and avoid drastic tax increases.

If the city lost half what it gets now from Casino Magic, he said, leaders would have no choice but to double property taxes in Bay St. Louis, he said.

Favre said municipal leaders will have to be vigilant to avert the rumored shift of casino funds to state coffers. Last year, city fees on Casino Magic funneled over $3.3 million into the local city and school district budgets. For July, the fees produced over $305,000 for the city and school district, city records show. That's $21,506 more than in July 2003.

Still, the city's receipts from state sales taxes declined for the month, Favre said.

In a later discussion, council members seemed to agree that some other fees the city charges need to be increased. Favre said he hopes the city can revamp its official code of ordinances in coming months, offering the chance to review fees which council may want to increase.

The city may hike its charges for dealing with quit claim deeds and property abandonments, for instance, to offset the costs the city faces when dealing with the legal work associated with those transactions, officials said.

In other matters, council agreed to poll members of the city Planning and Zoning Commission, to see which of the seven members want to continue serving.

Some of the members are absent consistently, council members said, leaving the commission in a bind to gather a quorum for its monthly meetings. If members don't confirm a desire to continue on the board, council wants to replace them with more active commissioners.

The theme of the Bible School was "passing on God's Blessings to others." Each of the five days of the school, a contest was waged between the boys and girls to see who could bring the most cans. The boys won, but the contest wasn't fair because there were three boys to every girl enrolled.

Cuevas' Quotes

by Ellis C. Cuevas

Don't forget to vote in Waveland this Tuesday

It was a great turnout for last Tuesday's special election in Waveland's Ward 1 for Alderman.

There were four candidates in the race and now a run-off is set for Tuesday, August 24, to decide as to who will be elected.

All qualified electors of Ward 1 in Waveland will have an opportunity to vote, even if they did not vote last Tuesday.

The polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. for the qualified electors to cast their vote for the candidate of their choice.

Voting will take place at the American Legion Hall, Coleman Avenue, Waveland.

Be sure to vote and remind your neighbors too also.

The prayers of many locals will be with the members of the Mississippi National Guard's 155th Infantry Regiment Company B, as they are activated to Camp Shelby for additional training before being deployed to Iraq.

This is not the first time for our National Guard Unit to be called to active duty, as members were called to active duty during the Berlin crisis. A big difference this time is that the local Guard Unit will be heading overseas.

I am not as familiar with the members of the 135th as I was with the troops of the Berlin Crisis, because I knew the majority of them.

As a matter of fact, one was my brother Felton and two first cousins, Alvin Bernard and Donald Cuevas, in addition to lots of folks I went to school with.

We all need to remember our troops, those of our National Guard Unit and others who are serving our country.

Remember their families too, as they are special people. It is no easy task for one to leave a spouse and children at home while being away and protecting our country.

We sure had a good treat weather wise for a week.

Those cool mornings and breezy evenings felt so good.

On the other hand, on Friday morning we returned to high humidity and temperatures.

I do realize we have many hot days ahead before Fall arrives.

We're putting bases in the right places

In an effort to get America's bases in the right places, President Bush has proposed the most dramatic military restructuring since the early 1950s. He wants to scale back military installations overseas, mostly in Western Europe, and bring home almost 70,000 military personnel and 100,000 family members. This reshuffling will impact forces in Europe and Asia - part of an effort to base our defense on 21st century technical capability instead of sheer numbers. It should give pause for second thought to closing domestic bases like ours in Mississippi.

Closing Cold War-era overseas installations and moving these military assets closer to 21st century threats is badly needed. I've been advocating this move for several years. You may recall that I led a Senate effort last spring to begin this very process. My amendment to this year's Defense Authorization Bill sought to first put outmoded overseas bases up for closure, before any domestic

From the Senate
By U.S. Sen. Trent Lott

I sympathize with German towns like Baumholder where U.S. military personnel now equal the town's native population of 11,000. The mayor there estimates Baumholder will lose $150 million a year if our forces leave.

That's a tough blow, and we should try to lessen the economic impact.

However, I'd rather see Baumholder lose $150 million than Meridian, Columbus or Pascagoula. I'd rather see a Cold War-era foreign base close than see our military lose any modern domestic base on which to train or station troops. The reality is we no longer need hundreds of bases in Western Europe or Asia. We do need the dependability, flexibility and expandability of our bases at home.

What's more, if we're going to close bases overseas, then we've got to have places to put those troops and equipment. Of course, many of our European forces will be redeployed to today's hot spots like Iraq and Afghanistan, but not all of them. The General Accounting Office has reported that previous rounds of base closure have left the Army with no excess base capacity. Before we have another round of base closures, we need to determine where to put troops and equipment returning home from overseas.

We can't afford to close a domestic base in the expected 2005 base closure round, then two years later waste tax dollars building a new base for returning troops.

President Bush's restructuring plan isn't punishment for countries like Germany or France which have been unsupportive of the Iraq War. Rather, this restructuring was needed before the Iraq Conflict, and it was inevitable even before the 9/11 attacks. Needed overseas installations like hospitals, refueling stations, ports and other assets will remain open.

This restructuring simply seeks to finally shift from a Cold War footing to one more suited to the 21st century's defense requirements.

Our military posture must shift from the passive detente and deterrence of Cold War to the active requirements of a very hot Terror War. The President's announcement reinforces my long-held view that base closure should begin first overseas, and that our domestic bases are more important than ever. Our

Thank you for supporting PRCC

Letter to the Editor:
On behalf of the Board of the Hancock County Chapter of the Pearl River Community College Association we would like to personally thank each and every business and individual that made a donation to the fish fry held on July 23, 2004. We would also like to thank the members of the community that purchased tickets. The support from the community has been overwhelming. Each year this benefit is held to raise monies that are earmarked for scholarships for students that have graduated from schools located in Hancock County. Each year for the past several years, this fund has provided 2 scholarships to worthy students to attend Pearl River Community College. With the opening of the Hancock County Center of the college, we would hope that this support would continue. Thank you again for your support.

Sincerely,
Frank R. Ladner

Richard honored by national VFW

Sue Richard of Kiln, Miss., was named runner-up department president of the year for her membership group and accepted an award for the Department of Mississippi Auxiliary during the 91st National Convention of the Ladies Auxiliary to the Veterans of Foreign Wars (VFW) of the U.S., which was held August 14-20 at the Cincinnati Convention Center.

Richard, who is a member of Alfred Alleman Auxiliary #2539, was honored for her excellent leadership during the 2002-2003 year.

These are the highest awards for members that will be presented during the convention.

During the convention, the National President presented $5,000 to the University of Cincinnati Cancer Center for research and the following special honors to members and students:

National Outstanding Community Volunteer Award to Inez Woolhiser of Winner, S.D.; NAC Volunteer of the Year Award to Martha Wenda of South St. Paul, Minn.; National Junior Girls Scholarship for $10,000 to Nora Spath of North Bend, Neb.; $10,000 Young American Creative Patriotic Art Scholarship to Jenny Harms of Bellevue, Iowa; and the Outstanding Young Volunteer of the Year Award and a $5,000 U.S. Savings Bond to Megan Johnson of Federal Way, Wash.

This was the second year that the organization has collected items for the troops during its National Convention. The hundreds of supplies will be sent on the returning convention truck to the National Headquarters in Kansas City, Mo., and then shipped overseas during the coming year.

This self-supporting program resulted from the request by a soldier stationed in Iraq who asked if the Ladies Auxiliary could assist the female soldiers. Beginning with last year's convention and throughout last year, Ladies Auxiliaries, VFW Posts, and Junior Girls Units, as well as concerned community groups, donated thousands of items and more than $9,000 to ship care packages to the troops.

Twelve shipments have been sent since last

Sue Richard

September, first to the female troops in Iraq and later to both men and women stationed in Iraq, Afghanistan and Kuwait.

DMR to enhance MS oyster habitat through grant-funded cultch plant

THE SEA COAST ECHO

The Mississippi Department of Marine Resources (DMR) began distributing 3,000 cubic yards of cultch material (oyster shells) near Telegraph reef, on Aug. 17, and will continue on Aug. 25 and Aug. 26, weather permitting. The site, located south of Pass Christian, was selected after gathering input from oyster harvesters in addition to on-site investigations of bottom types and other environmental factors.

A National Fish and Wildlife Foundation grant from the Shell Marine Habitat Program and shell retention fees, collected by the DMR on each sack of oysters harvested in Mississippi, will fund the $75,000 shell plant, which will create 50 additional acres of oyster reef.

The National Fish and Wildlife Foundation grant was awarded to the DMR in support of the DMR's "Mississippi Sound Oyster Habitat Enhancement" project.

The Shell Marine Habitat Program is a special program of the National Fish and Wildlife Foundation created in partnership with the Shell Oil Company Foundation.

"Planting Cultch material increases area for oyster spat recruitment. This is one of the best methods for enhancing Mississippi's oyster resources," said Bradley Randall, Biological Program Coordinator in the DMR's Shellfish Bureau.

Cultch plants consist of spreading oyster shell, unwashed limestone or concrete rubble over the water bottom, giving oyster larvae a clean surface on which to attach and grow. These plants are intended to enhance oyster productivity and increase fishing opportunities in south Mississippi through the continued development of existing reefs and the creation of additional new reefs.

This project is funded in part by the Shell Marine Habitat Program and by the Mississippi Shell Retention Fee Program.

Visit the DMR online at www.dmr.state.ms.us.

DMR seeks oyster industry input at public meeting

The Mississippi Department of Marine Resources (DMR) Shellfish Bureau will hold a public meeting Monday, August 30, 2004 at 6 p.m. at the Hancock County Civic Center, 3068 Longfellow Drive in Bay St. Louis. The meeting is designed to seek input from commercial fishermen and seafood processors in the Mississippi oyster industry.

This informal meeting will give participants an opportunity to provide input regarding the upcoming oyster season and the Mississippi Shellfish Program.

For more information, contact Rita Duvernay at the DMR at (228) 374-5022, ext. 5068.

The Mississippi Department of Marine Resources is dedicated to enhancing, protecting and conserving marine interests of the State by managing all marine life, public trust wetlands, adjacent uplands and waterfront areas to provide for the optimal commercial, recreational, educational and economic uses of these resources consistent with environmental concerns and social changes. Visit the DMR online at www.dmr.state.ms.us

BY JOSEPH W. GEX II
Staff Writer

The Father Peter Mockler Gymnasium was practically filled to capacity with teams and fans competing on the first night of the third annual Gulf Coast Kickoff Classic volleyball tournament.

All the coast teams including Bay High, Hancock, Pass High and host OLA were in the mix on Friday night.

Bay High defeated Hancock in their first match of the day 25-21 and 25-17. The Lady Tigers swept Vancleave 25-12 and 25-23 to finish the night 2-0.

Hancock took Pascagoula to three sets before losing to the Lady Panthers 19-25, 25-16 and 10-15. Hancock ended the first day 0-2 in the tournament.

The Pass Christian Lady Pirates were swept by Long Beach 25-9 and 25-13 in their first game. East Central handed the Lady Pirates their second loss of the tournament 25-18 and 25-14.

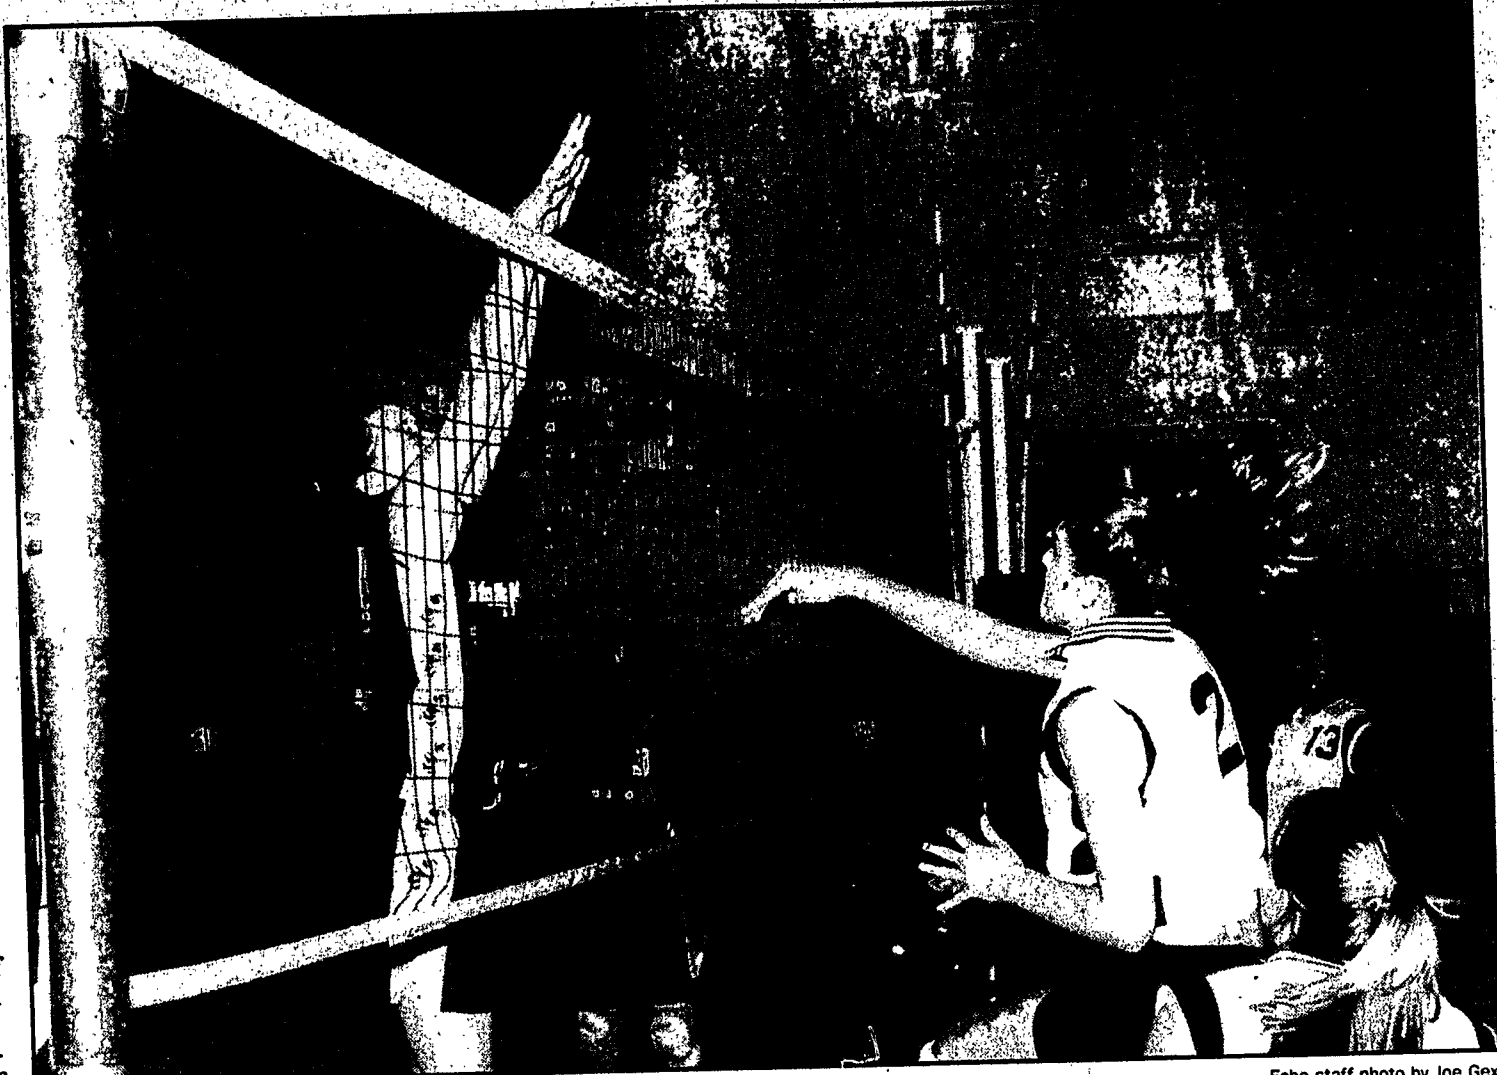

OLA, who won the inaugural Gulf Coast Kickoff Classic two years ago, went 2-0 on the first night sweeping Biloxi 25-23 and 25-10. In their second game of the night, OLA disposed of St. Martin 25-19 and 25-17.

Other scores from Friday night were the Lady Crusaders of Mercy Cross taking the Lady Admirals of Gulfport three games before losing the match 10-25, 25-16 and 8-15. The Lady Admirals also swept Ocean Springs 25-14 and 25-20 to improve to 2-0.

In perhaps the most intense match of the night, East Central outlasted the Lady Bearcats in three sets 25-12, 22-25 and 15-12.

their games on Friday 1-1 and Pass Christian ended at 0-2. Oak Grove did not play on Friday night.

Gulfport leads Pool D with a 2-0 record followed by Ocean Springs and Mercy Cross with 0-1 records. Resurrection did not play on Friday night.

OLA head coach Mike Meyers commented, "This was a very good night. We had a great crowd all evening. The level of volleyball is improving every year. This is such a fun atmosphere for the girls to compete in. It has been a great tournament so far."

On Thursday, August 19, the Bay High Lady Tigers were defeated at home by the Long Beach Lady Bearcats in a match that went the full five games. Bay High lost the first two games of the match 21-25 and 14-25.

Top Bay-Waveland Yacht Club Sailing award goes to Katherine Santa Cruz

The "Cock of the Walk" Memorial Trophy goes to Katherine Santa Cruz recently at the Bay-Waveland Yacht Club.

THE SEA COAST ECHO
Katherine Santa Cruz, 12 year old daughter of Randy and Charlotte Santa Cruz of Bay St. Louis received the prestigious "Cock of the Walk" Memorial Trophy given annually at the conclusion of the Bay-Waveland Yacht Club's Summer Sailing Program.

This award is given to the sailor who demonstrates top qualities in character, sportsmanship and ability. The award was donated to the BWYC in honor of Ford Gaudin, by his parents the late Clifford Gaudin and his wife Lake Gaudin of Bay St. Louis, after Ford's death in 1984.

Ford Gaudin was one of the top sailors at the BWYC and was remembered as a mentor and friend to other young sailors during the BWYC Summer Camps. Every year his mother and many sailors from far and near attend the Summer Sailing Banquet to assist in presenting the award and to tell the stories of Ford's numerous contributions to the BWYC Summer Sailing Program and the young sailors.

Katherine was presented the award by former United States Women's Sailing Champion, Cindy Stieffel Cady with the assistance of BWYC Commodore Mac Magee and current United States Men's sailing champion Kippy Chamberlain.

Casino -- Clermont Harbor

Association at the invitation of association president Millie Usher. Elliot spoke to residents of the community about plans for the area, including the hotel/casino development, Usher said.

The two brought drawings and maps depicting the hotel and casino plans and for plan for several high rise condominium projects, which Elliot confirmed were in serious negotiations. He said plans for future development would turn the Lakeshore/Clermont area from the hotel location at Poinset Ave. back to the Bayou Caddy into Mississippi's version of Destin, Florida.

Although Elliot allayed

the fears many residents had of finding a strip club on the beach, Usher said. Clermont residents were still uneasy about the size of the project and the traffic it would bring to the quiet area. They are also concerned about a cement breakwater that would be attached to the Clermont Harbor Pier, she said.

"The tallest thing in town now is a flag pole," said Usher. "We think the real value of Clermont Harbor is its uniqueness, not the fact that it could be the location of future plans for high-rise developments."

Elliot said he hoped the project could be of benefit both to the developers and to the community. One of the things he would like to see, he said, is the restoration of the harbor for which the community was named.

The supervisors are scheduled to make a decision on the matter on Oct. 4.

In other Board of Supervisors business:

• Work will begin next month on a veterans memorial that will be located on the corner of Main and Gex Streets on the courthouse lawn. Planners say the 15 ft. by 15 ft. covered memorial will be completed in time for Veteran's Day, November 11.

Election Commissioners told Supervisors that all county precincts must come into complete compliance with new ADA standards by 2006. The county must initiate a temporary fix to problems by September 30.

• Work on the Caesar Necaise Bridge is being held up by one rights of way conflict. Five private property owners had to agree to allow rights of way. Three have settled and one is close to signing an agreement, said County Engineer Geoff Clemens. He asked permission to begin advertisement for bids for the project when agreements are reached.

• The county will advertise for bids for the Kiln DeLisle and Dummyline Rd. projects.

ovate the building for the program."

Superintendent David Kopf said the issue seems closed to him.

"(The center) was discussed. It remained approved, and was not voted on again. I don't anticipate it to be brought up in the future."

Kopf said the Opportunity Center has been successful.

"We're off to a good start, and we really expect for it to continue. It's been very good so far. We feel like it's a good program, and we're serving our students."

Last-minute additions to the board's agenda caused a dispute between Ladner and Kopf on board policy.

Ladner said that both she and Kopf frequently receive requests from community members who wish to address the board. She said that in the past, the superintendent and the board president had worked together to determine which individuals would be able to address the board.

She said that it had come to the board's attention that Kopf denied requests to address the board without approval from board members, and made decisions to add requests without the board's approval.

"The board's policy presently states that the agenda will be prepared by the superintendent in cooperation with the board president."

"But this has not been taking place. It is the responsibility of the superintendent to make sure the necessary items for the day to day operation of the district is on the agenda. However, it is the board's agenda, and it is a board meeting."

Kopf said that he had been acting within policy, however.

"School policy states the board agenda should be done in conjunction with the board president and the superintendent. If there is a disagreement, if you contact three other board members, you can put an item on the agenda."

Kopf said the item in question was an address to the board by students who had questions regarding the district's new dress code policy.

"This is the first time I've had to do it. I don't expect to have to do it again."

The board will reconvene on Sept. 2.

Maze

Necaise, who also teaches 7th grade at Hancock Middle School, said she has been working on organizing the maze and the other attractions.

"For every single day during the summer, this is what I did. I'm still working past midnight."

Necaise said that she has already gotten proposals from many schools to host field trips this fall, including Camp Rap-A-Hope, an organization based in Mobile, AL that helps children cope with cancer.

The maze was constructed by MazePlay, a company based in Firth, Iowa. Using GPS satellite imagery, and top-secret tractor technology, MazePlay is able to design massive mazes of virtually any design.

Blake Malcom, a designer with MazePlay, said their GPS technology allows them to calculate the design within an inch.

He said that MazePlay has currently constructed 62 mazes around the country.

"The biggest ones are up to 25 acres," he said.

The fall activities will be open until Oct. 30. Necaise said she hoped to have the maze again next fall.

"I kind of hope it will become a tradition," she said.

Seized

One illegal device was confiscated from each location and additional ones were destroyed. Approximately $2,000 was in cash was seized, Hurt said.

The Gaming Commission had conducted an undercover operation in the county over the past two months which led up to the raid, Hurt said.

Those issued citations, if convicted, could face a fine of $500 and up to three months in jail. A second violation is a felony with a minimum of six months in the county jail, or a maximum of two years in the state penitentiary, according to Mississippi law.

Diamondhead Lions Club Golf Tournament offers chance to be a 'Knight of the Blind'

THE SEA COAST ECHO

In 1925 when Helen Keller challenged the Lions Clubs International to become her "Knights of the Blind," she could not have imagined the impact of Lions commitment to blindness prevention.

Today, almost 80 years later and with a membership of approximately 1.4 million, Lions have established eye banks worldwide, funded research on leading causes of blindness, organized eyeglass recycling efforts, and helped hundreds of thousands of visually impaired people develop the skills to live productive lives.

To carry on Helen Keller's "crusade against the darkness" locally, the Diamondhead Lions Club is sponsoring its 4th Annual Golf Tournament on Saturday, August 28, at the beautiful Diamondhead Golf Course.

The format is a mixed scramble with an 8:00 AM shotgun start. Check-in begins at 7:00 AM, along with a Putting Contest that also begins at 7:00 AM.

Cost will be $30.00 for Diamondhead annual members; $50.00 for Property Owners' Association members, and $65.00 for the general public. Lunch at the Diamondhead Country Club after golf is included in the entry fee.

Prizes will be awarded to the top three finishing teams, plus four $50.00 prizes for "Closest to the Pin," a set of Callaway Irons for "Hole-in-One" at designated Par 3, and many Door Prizes.

For further information, or to obtain Sign-Up Sheets, please contact Dee Tanner at 255-4815 or Chuck Mason at 255-8987.

Hole sponsorships at $50.00 each are available from Ted McCabe at 255-4778 or Jim Beckham at 255-7728.

Join the Lions at their golf tournament, have fun, a great lunch, and know that while you are enjoying a beautiful outing, you are also helping someone less fortunate than yourself

Agency looks at reducing number of shrimp boats; government buyback of licenses, boats a possibility

BY CAIN BURDEAU
ASSOCIATED PRESS
NEW ORLEANS (AP)—The National Marine Fisheries Service released on Thursday a much-anticipated draft of a study on how to save the struggling shrimp industry in the Gulf of Mexico and South Atlantic.

The agency said cutting down on the number of shrimp boats is a top priority. Possibilities mentioned in the report included a moratorium on new licenses and a government buyback of licenses and boats.

"We're producing about all we're going to produce as a system and I think the industry has to look at how to distribute that catch," said William Hogarth, assistant administrator of the Fisheries Service. "If it's going to be an open-access fishery then it will be difficult to keep up the profitability."

The industry, hit hard by imports which now make up 87 percent of the market, is waging a trade battle with six of the largest shrimp-producing countries. Last month, the U.S. Commerce Department ruled in favor of imposing tariffs on shrimp from those countries.

The options paper recognized imports as "most likely the primary cause of the decline in the domestic price." The study blamed tougher health standards in Europe, European tariffs on shrimp and improvements in shrimp farming on the increase in imports to the United States.

Hogarth added that the industry cannot expect to not compete with imports.

"You'll almost always have imports, fisheries are becoming very global," he said.

Hogarth said the American fleet consistently has harvested about 260 million pounds of shrimp a year, an indication that it will not be able to increase the harvest to make up for sagging prices and inflation.

"They really are operating on a thin, if any, profit margin right now," Hogarth said.

Some fishermen have been leery of the shrimp plan, questioning the study's findings because it allegedly used outdated data that did not consider a rise in cheap, pond-raised imports. Shrimpers have said the industry would be profitable and need no restructuring if imports were kept down.

Eddie Gordon, president of the Southern Shrimp Alliance, said the agency failed to update its study with new findings and that it did not get the views of fishermen.

"A useful business plan must be based on the most up-to-date information available and allow the shrimp industry be full participants in its development," Gordon said. His group, made up of shrimpers in eight states across the South, funded the antidumping petition targeting imports from China, Vietnam, Thailand, India, Ecuador and Brazil.

Hogarth stressed that the newly released document is not a final plan and that it would be updated with new data. Fisheries officials plan to hold a series of public meetings across the Gulf and South Atlantic coasts to discuss the future of the industry with fishermen and shrimp factory owners.

"This industry is extremely important and I think we need to have a good dialogue," Hogarth said.

Besides reducing the number of boats, the study said the domestic industry needs to get the message out that shrimp caught in the wilds is better than shrimp raised on farms.

"To be successful, domestic shrimp would have to be differentiated from imported shrimp based on its quality, freshness, flavor and texture," the study said.

"We know that marketing will help, regardless," Hogarth said.

Some shrimpers welcomed the government's involvement.

"I don't want to think that anybody with any kind of intelligence would sit down and look at the problems we're facing and say let's just leave it at the status quo, something has to be done," said A.J. Fabre, president of the Louisiana Shrimp Association.

Other shrimpers were more ambivalent about the proposals.

"The industry recognizes there are some problems, like we must market our shrimp, improve quality," said John Williams, a Tarpon Springs, Fla.-based shrimper and packing house operator. He also is the secretary and treasurer of the Southern Shrimp Alliance.

But he said imports are the culprit for drop in profits.

"We've dealt with insurance hikes, hurricanes, high fuel prices, government regulations, everything's that's been thrown at us, and we've been profitable until the imports started being dumped," he said.

He said both the U.S. International Trade Commission and U.S. Commerce Department came to that same conclusion during the recent antidumping investigations.

Fabre said the industry needs government intervention in the form of a price support. He also favors limiting the number of boats in the fleet and a buyback program in which the government would pay fishermen to get out of the fishery.

By giving a person, a company, (the chance) to get out of the business, if they so choose, not being forced out of the business, I see nothing wrong with that," Fabre said.

"The federal government created the situation we're caught in up right now. They let so many boats in to start with 10, 15 years ago, and now the government is letting all the imports in," Fabre said.

About a decade ago, shrimp fetched great prices and the fleet increased quickly. In the recent downturn in prices, many shrimpers found themselves in debt and unable to pay off boats and equipment they paid for with loans they got during the good times.

Hogarth expects some type of action on the proposals in a couple of years.

Additional Coast Electric crews to help restore power in Florida

Sixteen Coast Electric Power Association employees are working with Peace River Electric Cooperative in Wauchula, Florida to restore power to more than 30,000 members. Hurricane Charley devastated the cooperative's 10-county service territory snapping 1,000 utility poles and tangling hundreds of miles of line.

Another 16 Coast Electric employees are traveling to Florida today to relieve the first 16 crewmen who have been working 18-hour days to restore power as quickly as possible to Peace Valley members. Coast Electric's relief crew is traveling by bus along with several other Mississippi electric cooperative employees from Pearl River Valley Electric in Columbia and Singing River Electric in Lucedale.

These relief crews will continue to restore power to the residents of Florida and untangle the state's power distribution system.

"Coast Electric is always willing to help a fellow electric cooperative," said Coast Electric General Manager Robert Occhi. "We will provide support for Florida electric cooperatives for as long as necessary."

Coast Electric knows the value outside crews provide after a storm. More than 750 crewmen assisted Coast Electric in restoring power to 50,000 members who lost power during Hurricane Georges in 1998. Power was restored in an amazing four days with the help of surrounding electric cooperatives.

Isle of Capri earnings fall

BILOXI, Miss. (AP)—Biloxi-based Isle of Capri Casinos Inc. has reported first-quarter earnings of $10.6 million, or 34 cents per share — a 22-percent decline from the same period a year ago.

Bernard Goldstein, Isle of Capri chairman and CEO, said disruptions of operation due to construction at casinos in Louisiana and Mississippi hampered revenue during the first half of the quarter that ended on July 25.

"Our first quarter began with some challenges, including greater than expected construction disruption. However, the end of the quarter produced stronger results," Goldstein said.

Isle of Capri reported net income of $13.6 million, or 45 cents per share, for the first quarter of last year.

Isle of Capri recently announced it is considering moving one of its gambling boats in Lake Charles, La., to the east bank of the Mississippi River in suburban New Orleans.

Waveland F.D. gets 'fired up' at local training

BY BENNIE SHALLBETTER
Staff Writer

The Waveland Fire Department held a training session for seven of its thirteen firefighters this week. Six more firefighters completed the Fire Academy certified course in pumping apparatus and driver operator techniques a few weeks ago.

The course is offered at the Jackson campus, but the Waveland Department was able to offer it locally, and save money, through two certified instructors, Jerry Dubuisson of the Long Beach Fire Department and Waveland Assistant Fire Chief Mike Smith.

The 80-hour course prepares firefighters for the responsibilities involved in maintaining and safely operating the fire truck and the pumping operations. Unlike in the movies, firefighters stop at all red lights and stop signs and do not exceed posted speed limits, said Smith.

Final testing of skills will be performed by academy staff next Friday.

Three indicted for Pass woods arson

THE SEA COAST ECHO

Three Harrison County men recently received felony indictments of three counts each for a woods arson case that dates back to March, April and May 2003.

Gary Clark, 18, of 27169 D.V. Moran Road, Gary Hoda, 20, of 22151 Grimes Road, and John Ladner, 19, of 28491 West Dubuisson Road, along with a minor, whose case was handled by Harrison County Youth Court, were indicted for allegedly setting a number of woods fires in Pass Christian.

"Shortly after setting each fire, the individuals would call the local fire department that in turn called for help from the wildland firefighting crews of the Mississippi Forestry Commission," said Scott Miles, Fire Investigator for the Mississippi Forestry Commission.

"I believe these individuals were just looking for some excitement, but that excitement could have easily turned deadly," Miles said. "Fortunately, the Forestry Commission crews were able to get the fires plowed out before serious damage occurred."

"Those guys kept us pretty busy for about three months," said Randy Wilson, Harrison County Forester for the Mississippi Forestry Commission. "Due to budget cuts, our agency has had a reduction in the number of personnel available to respond to a wildfire, and this greatly affects our ability to respond quickly," Wilson said. "South Mississippi has always had a problem with woods arson. I'm just glad to see something is being done to stop it."

Although the fires were located in the vicinity of several homes, no structural damage resulted from the fires.

Views From a Front Porch

This morning as Stella and I drove to Slidell along I-10, we began passing long convoys of electric power trucks moving east. When we turned off to go into Slidell, Stella had counted more than fifty. These were Louisiana power vehicles and they were heading for Florida. Hurricane Charlie hit this afternoon and from what was being shown late this evening on TV, there is a lot of damage. The trucks and their crews will be busy.

I wasn't here in Camille. The worst Hurricane I've experienced on the Coast was Elena. Although our material damage from that storm was comparatively small, the electricity went off and, it being late summer, we were uncomfortable. Stella and I had our main meals at the cafeteria at Stennis. When I wanted a hot shower, I took it there also. At night, we slept on the front porch.

A couple of days after Elena, I borrowed a large truck and asked a neighbor to help me get some firewood from downed trees on rental property I had in Long Beach. I told him that we would split whatever we got and he agreed bringing two of his boys, Alan and Vincent to help.

After picking up the wood and while we were returning along the beach road in Pass Christian, one of the boys leaned into the cab from the back and shouted, "It looks like there's wood up on Second Street."

We drove over and stopped by a pile of cut oak wood in the roadway in front of a large house. We started tossing the wood into the truck when we realized Alan was not with us. We looked around and saw a woman talking to him by the house. She called to us.

"You men come over here, and help this boy get that wood from the back of the house." We went to the back and found a large live oak had fallen. Someone had cut it up, leaving the wood lying on the ground. We backed the truck into the front yard, and started carrying the wood from the back to the front and loading it into

Greater Mt. Zion AME Church celebrates 110th anniversary

"We think of our forefathers and mothers, who have left for us such a heritage; unless we build upon that they have left to us, then we labor in vain. It is not enough to point and look at the walls given to us, but what have we done individually to strengthen and fortify them. Why not leave a mark of the good you have done, and prosperity will remember you. Let your light so shine before men that they may see your good works and glorify your Father, which is in heaven."

From a tribute to the late Rev. Robert Sams

Over one hundred and ten years of religious freedom will be celebrated at Greater Mt. Zion African American Methodist Episcopal Church today in Pearlington. Services will begin at 3 p.m. The church's official birthday is August 28. Visiting choirs and singers will help make the event one to remember. Everyone is welcome to attend the celebration.

The first African American AME Church was founded by Richard Allen in July of 1794 in Philadelphia in a former blacksmith shop with a congregation of ten people. In a year the congregation had grown to over a hundred and in twenty years to more than a thousand. Allen became the church's first bishop.

Rev. Frederick LeRoy Fields, the current pastor at Greater Mt. Zion African American Methodist Episcopal Church performing a Baptism in the Pearl River.

Greater Mt. Zion was originally founded in Logtown in 1894 and named Big Mt. Zion when Rev. Joa Dowery put out a call for help in establishing a church. Principals in heeding that call were David Sams, S. J. Parker and H.H. Burton. Presiding Elder was J.G. Thompson and Presiding Bishop was Rt. Rev.

Richard S. Disney.

In 1920 the church moved and was rebuilt under the leadership of Rev. H.J. Walker. Presiding Elder was Rev. Tolson and Presiding Bishop was T. Rev. William W. Beckett. Trustees at that time were H. A. Burton, David Sams, Mark Elliot, Neville Sams, Elder Rayford, John Lee Sr. and Rev. Andrew Sams. Andrew was the son of David

LEARN to lose weight in HMC 10-week series

THE SEA COAST ECHO

Hancock Medical Center will repeat its 10-week series on weight management beginning Monday, September 20.

"LEARN" is an acronym for Lifestyle, Exercise, Attitude, Relationships and Nutrition. Each letter represents a component of the weight loss challenge, said registered dietitian Dawn Voshein.

"This program is tailored to each individual's problem area," she said. "One person may eat very little during the day, but uncontrollably at night. Another may snack throughout the day and not even realize it."

Each class member will be asked to establish eating and activity habits by keeping a log during the initial phase of the seminar. Voshein will tabulate caloric intake and assess activity level based on the information provided.

"We want to set individual goals and develop a plan for each participant to reach his or her goal. An important part of this series focuses on changing behavior to sustain

United Way Campaign kicks off August 31st

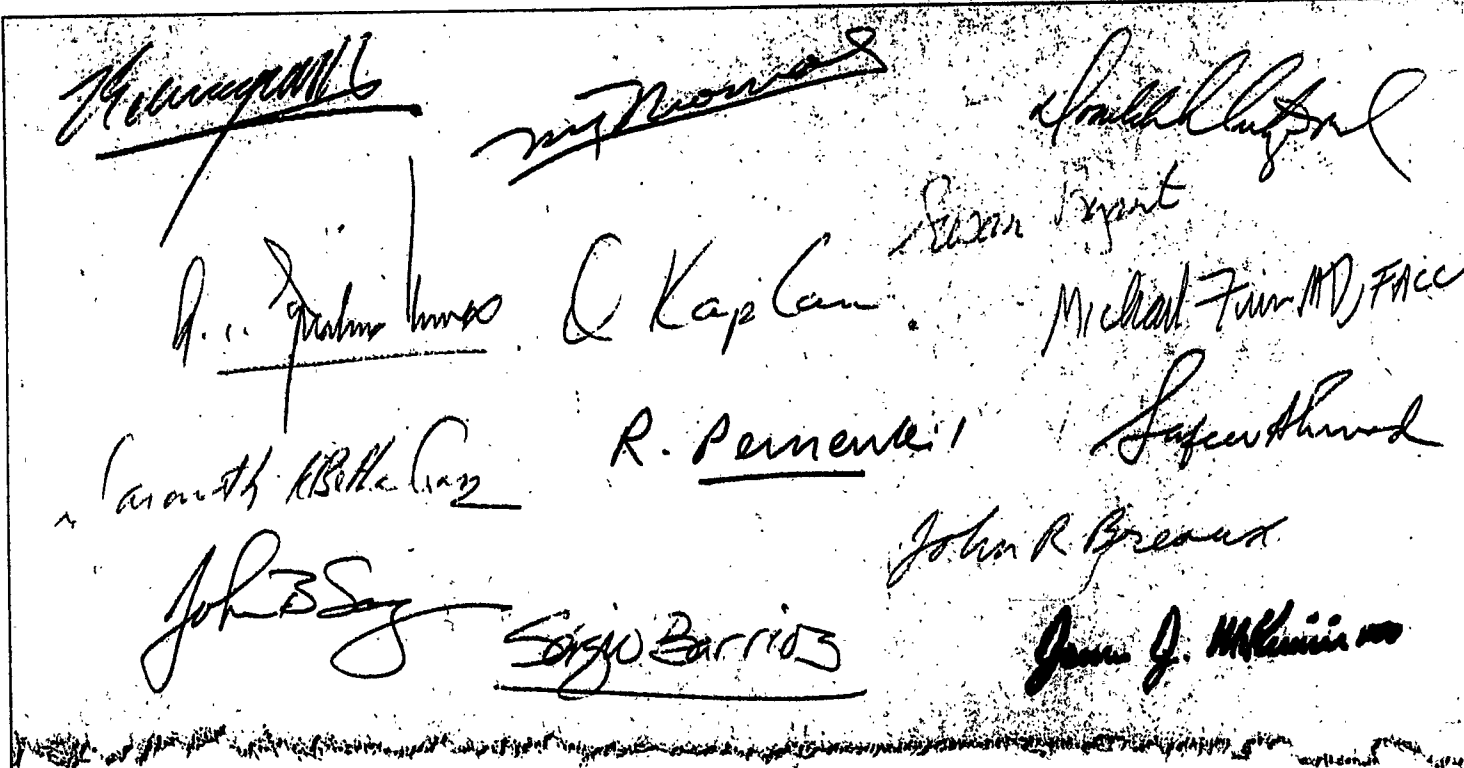

The second annual combined campaign kick-off of United Way of South Mississippi and the Federal Campaign is gearing up for another exciting season on Tuesday, August 31st. The event will kick-off at 9:00 a.m. at the Grand Casino Gulfport, Events Center.

The kick-off is free and open to the public. Just as last year's event, this year has a football theme and will feature a very exciting pass competition for sponsoring company CEO's, Federal agency directors and military commanders. Judy Dauro, Combined Federal Campaign kick-off chair states, "With the success last year in combining the two campaigns into one large kick-off event, we feel we were able to make a larger impact on the community, companies holding campaigns, and the charity agencies receiving the donations. We hope people come out to support this very worthwhile cause, learn more about the charities, meet the leaders in the community running campaigns and have a lot of fun in the process."

With an expected attendance of over 750 people from across the region, this is the largest event of the two campaigns each year. Entertainment will include: the award winning, nationally recognized, cheerleaders from Harrison Central High School, Hancock High School band, and the Long Beach show choir-Tropical Wave. The Army National Guard will execute the presentation of colors. Master of Ceremonies for the event will be John McFarland of The Sun Herald and from WLOX-TV 13, weekend sportscaster Bill Snyder, will be the special guest to referee the football pass competition. "This is a great networking opportunity, but it is also a time to visit and talk to the charity agencies where you are investing your dollars," states Gretchen O'Boyle the United Way chair of the kick-off.

Campaign chairperson, Pat Nichols of DuPont states, "Our goal this year is aggressive and already, we are working hard to reach and even exceed it. The dollars contributed by the thousands of local supporters of United Way will be invested in over 70 programs across South Mississippi that provide health and human services to thousands of our neighbors who need it. Our kick-off event will be a lot of fun and we are excited about it. But there is also a more serious side, helping educate donors about the programs where they are investing their money. The more people are aware and sensitive to the important issues in our community, the more they will want to give to achieve the improvement that is so important to us all! We're counting on each and every one of you!" Representatives from over 50 UW and CFC agencies will be on hand to provide information on program services. Doors will open at 8:30 for general admission. "There is no cost to attend and the general public is invited. Come meet the United Way/CFC charitable organizations and corporate supporters and learn more about what matters in your community," said O'Boyle.

RCIA to begin soon

It's been said that many people, in some way, are searching for God. Reaching out to those who are looking for answers is what RCIA (Rite of Christian Initiation for Adults) is all about. It is a continuing process of prayer, study and discussion for those who are interested in information about the Catholic Church.

Noel Phillips, Director of Religious Education for the Parish, said that the lay members of St. Clare will be reaching out to:

1. Unbaptized adults and baptized Christians from other faiths who want to learn more about the Catholic faith and possibly become Catholics; and
2. Catholics who may have been baptized but have not received the other Sacraments of the Catholic Church.

The first phase, which begins on September 2, 2004 at 7:00 p.m. at the St. Clare Parish Hall, 234 South Beach Boulevard, Waveland, is a preliminary program to explain the process of preparing adults for initiation into the church through the reception of the Sacraments of Baptism, the Eucharist and Confirmation. Parishioners are invited to ask friends and neighbors to the meeting, as well as those who may benefit from the inquiry.

For further information, please contact Noel Phillips at 228-467-3296 or the Rectory at 228-467-9275.

Hurricane Camille memorabilia on display

Hurricane Camille memorabilia is currently on exhibit at the Bay St. Louis-Hancock County Library.

Zion -- 110 years

Sams and the father of Robert Sams, who served as pastor for close to 40 years until ill health forced him to retire in 1990.

That plain little white church was lighted by kerosene lamps and heated with a wood stove. There was no indoor plumbing.

In 1954, under the pastorate of Rev. Robert Sams, the church was relocated to a beautiful hill overlooking the pines, a living proof of God's creation. It was through the faithful members and the Grace of God that this endeavor was successful, says church history, because there was very little money.

But with the help of the faithful, the church was rebuilt.

This church had electricity and running water inside, but the rest of the plumbing still remained outside.

Members who contributed much to the rebuilding of the new church were Sippio Morse, Charley Jones, Ed Cornelious, R. E. Sams, John Lee, Sr. George Oliver, Johnny Mitchell, Alfred Thomas, Ray Levi, Andrew Sams, Minnie Moultrie and Melvina Morse. Presiding Elder was Rev. Durr and Presiding Bishop was Rt. Rev. H.T. Primm.

Unfortunately the new church was destined to be short-lived because in 1964 the United States government took possession of the land where it and many communities were located by imminent domain to build Stennis Space Center and Buffer Zone.

In 1964 the church sold its property and purchased the current site in Pearlington. With the help of the faithful and loyal members the church was once again rebuilt and renamed Greater Mt. Zion, because great things were truly happening, says church history.

Presiding Elder was Rev. R.A. Scott and Rt. Rev. W.F. Ball was Presiding Bishop. Officers were R. E. Sams, George Oliver, Ray Levi, Hohn Lee, Sr., Henry Oliver, Minnie Moultrie, Adrelia Jackson, Mildred Wheat, Viola Burnett and Gussie Shelton.

In 1990 when illness forced the retirement of Rev. Sams, Rev. Walter S. lacy was appointed pastor. Presiding Elder was Rev. Holiday and Presiding Bishop was Rt. Rev. Donald G.K. Ming.

In 1991 Rev. Frederick LeRoy Fields was appointed pastor and is currently serving. Under the direction of Rev. Fields the church has moved to new spiritual heights in the Lord, say church members.

A wheelchair ramp, pump house, and church office have been added. The church has also participated in a bread give away program to feed the hungry. Each year they organize an Easter Parade.

Church members would like to give thanks to all past and present members for all the hard work that has made the church a reality and an ongoing entity. The church has survived many storms and hurricanes, but by the Grace of God remains.

"We are proud of the many faithful members who have struggled to make their dream a reality," say church officials, "And as we keep God in our midst greater things will continue to happen."

The woman watched us. "Now you make sure you clean that mess up back there when you get through."

"Where do you want the branches, Ma'am?"

"Put them in the front, the city will take care of it."

After hauling out the branches and clearing the backyard under the woman's watchful eye, we climbed sweaty and tired back in the truck and drove away. There was no room in the back now for the boys and they were crammed with us in the cab.

After a bit Alan asked, "Who do you suppose the woman got to cut up the tree in the first place?" "I don't know," his brother said, "but I bet when that lady told them to cut, they cut."

A few days later, on the way home from Stennis, we passed a covey of electric repair trucks with a large number of men working around eight or ten severely damaged houses.

"That's not right," Stella said. "They're putting all their efforts into heavy damaged places which house a few people, when there are several hundred homes in town that have had little damage, but have no electricity.

"They should attack it like a medical triage; take care of these lightly damaged areas first and then concentrate on the heavily damaged areas. It's going to take a long time to fix these places. Meanwhile, we have no power."

"Well," I said, "those repair men are from Georgia. Our repair people are still in Florida helping where Elena hit them a week before us. I think these Georgia people are just doing their best in an area they're not familiar with."

When we got home, there was still no electricity. Stella was angry, it had been off for a week. She spotted a Georgia power truck coming along the beach road and ran out and forced it to stop. I decided to stay out of it.

The man getting down from the truck was in his early twenties and he looked a little bewildered at Stella. Stella waved her arms and pointed to our house and other houses up and down the beach. The man pointed to the power pole with the transformer on it. She waved her arms some more and, leaning into him, pointed at the transformer as well.

He got back into his truck, moved it close to the pole, and raised his power bucket to the transformer. We watched. After about fifteen minutes he waved at us, lowered his bucket and drove off. We had power. All along the beach there was power.

When we went into the house, the ceiling fans were on and we could hear the air conditioner compressors kick in. The difference was remarkable. Already the house had started to smell fresher.

"Stella," I said thinking about the Georgia lineman. "Do you remember my telling you about that woman over in the Pass that had us pick up all that wood and clear her yard?"

"Yes. What about her?" "By any chance," I said edging for the door, "is she a relative you haven't told me about?"

"Don't push it," she said. I decided I'd better not and went to see if there was any hot water for a shower.

Don't Run Down Steps

One day as a young boy, I was on my way to church when, knowing I was already late for the service, I tried to rush. I remember that I was running down some steps in front of my home when I fell and bruised myself in several places. I recall thinking, "Here I am going to church, so why would God let me fall down and hurt myself?" I was blaming God for my clumsiness. And although blaming God when things go wrong may seem absurd, it's not too surprising in a day and age when we may fail to accept responsibility for our own actions, often blaming others for our shortcomings instead. And, when a disastrous situation comes along that can't be blamed on some individual, we can always blame God. However, a more beneficial approach is knowing that God always loves us, and even when things don't go as we believe they should, realizing that perhaps He is trying to teach us a lesson. I only fell down those steps once, and I am now aware that when descending stairs I should go one step at a time and without running. Throughout our lives, we are subject to many learning experiences, and God's gentleness in dealing with us should always be appreciated.

The Lord is good; He protects His people in times of trouble; He takes care of those who turn to Him.

Grandparents Astro Camp

Joyce Lawrence (left) and her grandson Milan Collins, both of Sildell, La., build rockets during StennisSpace's Astro Camp Saturday for grandparents and grandchildren. During the camp, "Rocketry 101," campers and their grandparents launched the rockets they built and learned about space transportation systems and the evolution of space travel through hands-on activities. SSC is America's largest rocket test complex, where every main engine for the Space Shuttle is tested.

Stennisphere launches families on 'Grand' Space Adventure

This fall, StennisSpace's Astro Camp Saturday at NASA Stennis Space Center gives space buffs of all ages a chance to explore space! Astro Camp Saturday is a one-day camp in which campers build and launch rockets, go on a space treasure hunt and even experience a time warp simulation.

Rocketry 101, a special mission for grandparents and their grandchildren ages 8 to 12, will take place Saturday, Sept. 11, in observance of National Grandparents Day. Together, grandparents and their grandchildren will team up to build and launch a rocket. The mission will look back to the exciting Apollo Moon missions of the 1960s, and ahead to NASA's plan to return to the Moon. The cost for this camp is $50 per child (and no charge for grandparents).

Campers blast off for their missions from the Launch Pad, located at the Hancock County Welcome Center, I-10, Exit 2.

To register or for more information, call 1-800-237-1821 or (228) 688-2370 or visit www.ssc.nasa.gov and click on the Astro Camp Saturday link.

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC

The City of Waveland and the Hazard Mitigation Planning Council are in the process of development a Hazard Mitigation and Flood Protection Plan. The first meeting to begin the planning process will be held on Thursday, August 26, 2004 at 9:30 AM in the City Hall Annex located at 307 Coleman Avenue, Waveland, Mississippi. All interested persons and agencies are cordially invited to attend all planning meetings and participate in the planning process. Notices of subsequent meetings will be posted at the City Hall in Waveland.

Boy Scouts of America - Pine Burr Area Council to hold annual membership drive

Boys in grades 1 through 8 from more than 250 elementary and middle schools in 6 counties will have the opportunity to participate in the Boy Scouts of America, Pine Burr Area Council's annual membership drive, "School Night for Scouting" Thursday, August 26, 2004.

"School Night for Scouting" gives boys a chance to enroll in Tiger Cubs, Cub Scouts or Boy Scouts, depending on their age. It also gives boys and their parents the opportunity to meet the Scout Leaders and discuss Scouting programs. Last year more than 3,500 boys were recruited during the Pine Burr Area Council event. The Pine Burr Area Council will include George, Hancock, Harrison, Jackson, Pearl River and Stone counties.

"This events gives boys and parents the opportunity to learn more about Scouting, which we believe can make a very valuable contribution as a young boy grows to adulthood," said Dr. Shelby Thames, president of University of Southern Mississippi and chairman of this year's "School Night for Scouting". "Scouting can help youth to build self-esteem and make the right choices throughout life."

According to Doug Montague, vice-president/membership for the Pine Burr Area Council, joining the Boy Scouts is also convenient. "Many parents don't realize that there are packs and troops in their own neighborhood or associated with the school that their child attends," he said. Prospective members in all schools will receive invitations to "School Night for Scouting," and posters in schools and at various locations throughout the community will provide advance information about the event.

During "School Night for Scouting," schools will have special programs and exhibits. Leaders of 400 Cub Packs and Scout Troops in each school district will also participate.

For more information on joining Scouting visit www.pineburrscouting.org or call toll free 1-866-424-3188 Monday-Friday, 8:00 a.m. - 4:30 p.m.

Doc Gibbs percussion workshop at the Lynn Meadows Discovery Center

THE SEA COAST ECHO
Doc Gibbs, musical director for Emeril Live!, will conduct his percussion workshop on Friday, August 27 at 4:30 at the Lynn Meadows Discovery Center in Gulfport. The workshop is free and is open to adults and students.

Gibbs is one of the most sought after percussionists in the music industry today. He has toured or recorded with artists such as Erykah Badu, Al Jarreau, Whitney Houston and Ricki Lee Jones. While on tour with the late Grover Washington, Jr., Grover introduced him as "Doc Gibbs", an apt name for a musician who "operates" jazzy and funky rhythms with a vast assortment of traditional instruments. In 1997, Doc became the musical director for "Emeril Live" on the Food Network, and was given the opportunity to bring his band, Picante, to the world's attention as Doc Gibbs and the Emeril Live Band.

Doc is an outspoken advocate for music education, and conducts percussion workshops for children across the country. The workshop is educational, informative and involves participants in an exciting journey of the drum using instruments from Africa, Brazil and the Caribbean.

Doc Gibbs and Picante will perform at "BAM on the Beach II" with Emeril Lagasse on Saturday, August 28, at the Grand Casino Event Center. Tickets are $125 per person, general admission. The event is for adults only. For information call 897-6039.

Last October, Renee Boxx, along with friend Eileen Chaptin, held a trunk show in her home. By summer's end this experiment would blossom into The Funky Rose, her own boutique.

Renee and Eileen's fashion accessories business led to booth rentals in Court Street Station as well as Antiques and Interiors. This being the trendy way to shop, Renee seized the opportunity to move into a larger retail space.

The Funky Rose is a unique blend of shops and artists in addition to her own line of hip clothing. Shoppers will find Ellen Kane Gifts, a corner courtesy of Bookends bookstore, and shoes from Joyce Whitfield's Shoe Boutique. Artists such as Ann Kearney, Barbara Brodman and Kathleen Marlowe shine in Renee's spacious, lively locale.

Born and raised in New Orleans, Renee considers herself a Mississippi girl at heart. Memories of summers spent on the Coast with her six siblings, parents and grandparents drew her back to the area to raise her own four children. Renee's grandmother, Rosalie, called Rose for short, fostered in her granddaughter a love of fashion and shared her secret desire to pursue a career in that field. It is Renee's dream that her grandmother's creative, vivacious spirit lives on in her namesake store - The Funky Rose.

Sandra Clifford and her husband, David, moved to Bay St. Louis from New Orleans seven years ago after their weekends in Pass Christian for a number of years. They are truly delighted with the relaxed lifestyle that the Mississippi Gulf Coast offers. Sandra currently serves on the Board of the Beachfront Property Owners Assoc.

Prior to joining Latter & Blum Realtors in Bay St. Louis, Sandra enjoyed a very successful sales career in New Orleans for many years as Sandra Wolf. She is a native Mississippian, having grown up in Vicksburg and Natchez, then attending USM.

Sandra's favorite past time, shopping, is a great "fit" for selling Real Estate. "So many of my clients are New Orleanians who have fond memories of coming to the Gulf Coast as children. They have some idea what they are looking for, but are not aware of all the areas that might fit their dreams, or their wallets. We looked for a long time before we found our home, proving that it may take a while to find just the right property. It is a real treat to help people realize a dream."

Ann Kearney's love for art began with her love for vibrant color which highlights much of her work today.

After obtaining a fine arts degree from the University of New Orleans in 1983, she established herself in New Orleans by painting directly on fabric, a technique rarely used. Her paintings on fabric became everything from quilts to pillows that were featured in lifestyle publications. Hand painted decorative furniture, water colors, oil paintings, and murals were a natural sequel to the fabric painting, all the while maintaining the beautiful use of vibrant color that has become her hallmark. Most of her work has been the result of special requests which she enjoys customizing for those appreciative of her art forms.

Today she concentrates mostly on the Mississippi Coast which has now been her home for several years. Ann particularly enjoys painting the things that we all love on our Coast from oysters, crabs, and shrimp to herons and marsh scenes. She welcomes visitors and art lovers to her Main Street Gallery in Bay St. Louis whom she affectionately calls "Life At the Beach With Ann Kearney."

Meet Kathy Pinn. "Find what you love to do and do it" is a phrase a lot of experts use to help people find their calling in life. I have to say that "I love" having a shop. There are so many facets to being a business person. It suits me perfectly because of the diversity. Setting up the shop and displays fulfills artist space in my heart. The sale of things for the home keeps me somehow bonded to the ties of being a mother and wife for 39 years. The nature of retail and having customers visit the shop fulfills my social nature. And then the business aspect - the bookkeeping, advertising, correspondence and business affiliations keep the learning process going. I also feel a certain sense of service to the community and to my customers that is very satisfying.

I like to think that our shop is a pleasant environment with wonderful things. People come to visit. Then they just happen to find things they can't live without or buy for someone important to them.

Andrea Yeager is the owner of Andrea's Annex, offering gourmet products, including Mississippi, low-sugar, low-carb, low-fat and kitchenware at 310 Jeff Davis Ave., Long Beach.

"We opened the store two years ago to help those who needed to restrict the sugar, carbohydrate and fat content in their diets," said Yeager, who writes food columns for The Sun Herald and the Delta Democrat Times. "I'm a diabetic, so I know how frustrating it is to try and find good-tasting low-sugar products."

Andrea's Annex has been a nine-year quest for Yeager to bring healthy, quality products to the marketplace.

We are now expanding Andrea's Annex to offer more gourmet products, especially Mississippi Made. We offer Gourmet-To-Go and individual cheesecakes, sugar free and regular.

Prior to opening her store, Yeager, who lives in Long Beach, was the domestic violence intervention program coordinator and educator for the Gulf Coast Women's Center for Nonviolence, a position that she held for four years.

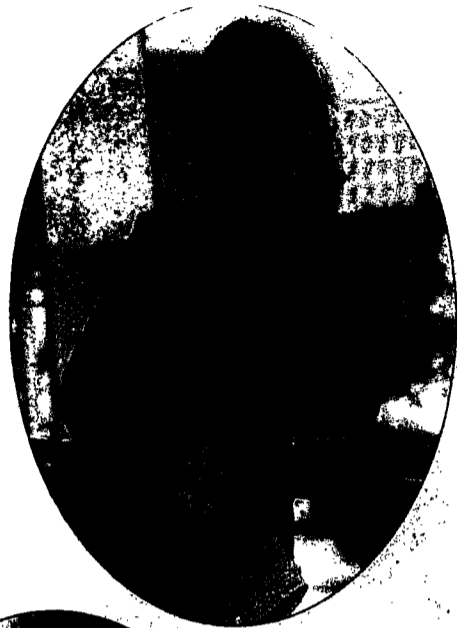

After spending 25 years in daily newspapers at The Sun Herald, the Houston Chronicle in Houston, Texas, and the Orange Leader in Orange, Texas, Yeager left her post as managing editor of The Sun Herald to stay home with her daughter.

"We adopted Elyse, and my husband, Allen, and I didn't wait 10 years for her to let someone else raise her," Yeager said.

Tucker Carlson turns down volume, turns off filter

By Kate O'Hare
© Zap2it

Tucker Carlson doesn't like to shout. He's been forced to do a lot of shouting as a co-host on the contentious CNN series "Crossfire," on his own public-affairs show, PBS' "Tucker Carlson: Unfiltered," but he aims to turn down the volume ... and he believes viewers are grateful.

"I prefer a civil tone," he says. "I actually don't like the shouting."

The show, which premiered June 18, airs Fridays in most PBS markets (check your local listings).

Self-defined as part conservative, part libertarian, Carlson, 34, worked as a journalist before

CNN tapped him for TV work during the 2000 election. He still keeps a foot in the print world, as a regular contributor to both Esquire and The Weekly Standard. He's also the author of the 2003 book "Politicians, Partisans and Parasites: My Adventures in Cable News."

Although he's been covering the political scene for a while now, Carlson is particularly dismayed at the tone of this year's presidential race.

"Look," he says, "in 2000, the last race before I got into television, there was nastiness. On the other hand, there weren't any issues. Honestly, no one wanted to admit it, but the stakes were remarkably low."

"The problem with this election is, there is a lot at stake. (Including) the war in Iraq and terrorism. So when the discourse gets muddy and misleading and hateful, as it has, it really does a serious disservice to the country, and that hurts people. I'm offended by that, particularly on the war in Iraq."

"It's complicated, and I have passionate feelings about it, which are not supportive of the president, but I still think that it's totally outrageous to use that war, the tragedy it has become, as a cudgel for political gain."

Although he already has two shows, Carlson is still eager for a fresh challenge. "I'll take more than two," he says. "I don't care. It's fun."

Phil Keoghan

By Jay Bobbin
© Zap2it

It's seven teams down, four to go. Actually, only three will go, since one will be left - with the $1 million grand prize - at the conclusion of "The Amazing Race 5." Yet another two-person squad is knocked out of the around-the-globe quest in the episode of producer Jerry Bruckheimer's unscripted series airing Tuesday, Aug. 24, on CBS. As always, host Phil Keoghan will be at the end-of-hour destination to give the last arriving players the bad news they're going home early.

"It's not easy," Keoghan says of having that task. "I have a tremendous amount of admiration for the teams that take part, the fact that they're prepared to put themselves out there and compete. I think all of us (who work on the show) can't help but feel something every single time we do it."

"One of the things that's so great about this show is that people truly come on for the experience of a lifetime. When they leave, they all say the same thing: 'I just wish we could have gone one more step. I just wish we could have seen one more country.' Nobody wants to leave, and that's hard."

The rapid-fire editing of "The Amazing Race," regularly moving between the teams, indicates how much can happen at any given time. However,

Keoghan says, "I don't know if people realize just what an incredible logistical nightmare this show is to produce. We can never shut down, because there's always the chance that the teams will take a completely different direction and surprise us."

"No matter how we try to predict, they will find a different way," he concludes. "They will get there faster than you think they will."

Born: May 31, 1967, in New Zealand.

Current residence: Los Angeles.

Marital status: Keoghan and wife Louise have a daughter, Ellie.

TV work: "Keoghan's Heroes," "Spot On," "Adventure Crazy," "Go for It," "Fox After Breakfast," the upcoming Discovery Channel series "N.O.W. (No Opportunity Wasted)."

Getting started: While on a cinematography apprenticeship, Keoghan auditioned for an on-camera role on the show "Spot On" and landed the job of host.

On what he deems the key to "Amazing Race" success: "Communication. Sometimes when people are yelling and screaming at each other, it's a lot better than teams trying to be nice to each other."

Networks say conventions a minor part of a bigger story

By John Crook
© Zap2it

Network news anchors and executives agree that the statistically tight race between incumbent President George W. Bush and his main challenger, Sen. John Kerry, is a story that is unfolding spontaneously between now and Nov. 2.

That's why NBC, CBS and ABC are limiting their prime-time coverage of the Republican National Convention, beginning Aug. 30 in New York, to roughly an hour per night, the same coverage they provided during July's Democratic National Convention in Boston.

"The conventions ... (have) become Kabuki dancers, and there is less than meets the eye there," NBC News anchor Tom Brokaw explains. "They're great ceremonial occasions, very ritualistic. Very little happens that is spontaneous or indeed newsworthy at these conventions."

"This election year is going to be momentous. These are troubling times. These are big issues, and it's incumbent upon us to do the best job that we can, not just cover the war, but cover the campaign and all the shadings of it. So I'm looking forward to what will be my valedictory election season as an anchorman, because I think it's going to be stimulating, exciting and most of all, I love the idea that the country is so engaged."

CBS News president Andrew Heyward says he is satisfied that his network's nightly prime-time hour of convention coverage is sufficient to cover the truly newsworthy events such as speeches by the president and vice president.

"For us to do (a total of) three hours in prime time, for us to be there en masse and to spend the money that we're spending is a huge commitment that we don't make to too many stories. If anything, to me, the networks are still paying enormous attention to the convention despite legitimate controversy about just how newsworthy they are."

The networks can be very selective with a clear conscience, Heyward argues, because so many other cable channels and Internet sites are providing access to the lesser stories for viewers that are interested in them.

A case in point during the recent Democratic National Convention was Ron Reagan's short speech pleading for expanded stem-cell research.

"To say 'We're interrupting now, here's a bulletin, so listen to (those) eight minutes,' I just didn't feel it was justified," Heyward says, explaining why CBS didn't carry Reagan's speech live. "If I felt (we) were the only place people could see it, then it would be more of an issue. But in today's environment, there's lots and lots of places that they can see every single speech that they want to."

ABC News anchor Peter Jennings, who visited Iraq on assignment earlier this summer, says that recent trip leaves him glad ABC News is making gavel-to-gavel convention coverage available at least to its digital subscribers in roughly 80 percent of the country.

"To come back is to be instantly reminded that this country is in the middle of an extraordinary election at the moment and ... we think it makes sense for us to do this old-fashioned reporting in whatever new technological ways are available to us," Jennings says. "I think we go off to ... New York expecting a 'convention as usual' to some extent, with targets of opportunities for us in many ways."

"(We don't have) to rely on either of the political parties to make the news for us at the convention. It is a terrific opportunity to look at the party and its platforms, to look at the up-and-comers in the respective parties."

NBC's Brokaw thinks it's a serious mistake to confuse lackluster prime-time network ratings for convention coverage with the notion that the U.S. public is apathetic and disengaged from this presidential race.

"I've described the political landscape as seeming calm on the surface but as quite molten right beneath the surface," he says. "I think the big issue is anxiety, and under that "I don't think we have to rely on either of the political parties to make the news for us at the conventions," ABC World News Tonight anchor Peter Jennings says of his network's political coverage.

umbrella is the war in Iraq, outsourcing in the American economy and the future of it, (and) this whole cultural debate that is going on. And I think people are paying more attention than we sometimes give them credit for."

In any case, the outcome of this year's political race still looks to be a real nail-biter, says the host of ABC's "This Week With George Stephanopoulos."

"If you look at any of the historical models - the economic growth, job growth, inflation - then Bush cannot lose this election. He's supposed to win by five or 10 points," Stephanopoulos says.

"On the other hand, if you look at his job approval rating and the right track/wrong track numbers, close to 60 percent of the country think we're on the wrong track, (which means) Bush can't win the election. That helps explain why we're in such a deadlocked race right now and why it's going to be so difficult to predict ... right up until the end of this election."

Lindell captures a boy toy

Heather Lindell

By Paulette Cohn
© Zap2it

It's been nothing but murder and mayhem for Heather Lindell since the actress replaced Heather Lauren Olson as the Shawn Brady-obsessed Jan Spears in "Days of Our Lives." A theater major at UCLA at the time of her audition and now a graduate, Lindell always imagined herself performing on Broadway in a musical such as "Hairspray." She can sing and she does dance.

So when her agent originally called with the info on the audition, Lindell took a pass because she had a final to take, and it was important to her that she graduate on time. But when the audition was moved, Lindell went for it - and in a big way.

"I wasn't told that I would be a raving lunatic when I auditioned," says the actress, who also appeared in the Mary-Kate and Ashley Olsen straight-to-video movie "Getting There." "They said, 'bitchy.' That was the breakdown that I got. I wasn't warned about any of this, so I am just having fun with it."

The "this" Lindell is talking about is the story line involving the kidnapping and holding hostage of Shawn "Boy Toy" Brady (Jason Cook). Still, Lindell will be the first to admit that it has provided her an opportunity to play some very interesting scenes - ones she might not get to do on Broadway.

"It is a remarkable thing," she says of her role, "but it isn't something I ever envisioned for myself."

NBC's "Days" and "Passions" return to the air Aug. 30, following the conclusion of the Olympics, in the same spot they left off. But not all stations will be airing the shows in the same time slot. According to NBC, Houston, San Francisco and Phoenix will be making time changes, so check local listings.

Dear Paulette: Is the young actor who plays Thomas Forrester on "The Bold and Beautiful" the same actor who plays Shawn's 16-year-old son on "Nip/Tuck"? Thanks. -Julie D., Derby, Kan.

Dear Reader: No, they aren't the same. John C. Hensley plays Matt McNamara on "Nip/Tuck," while Drew Tyler Bell plays Thomas Forrester on "B&B."

Gretsch just isn't that 'Keen'

By Taylor Michaels
© Zap2it

Q Is the actor playing federal agent Tom Baldwin in USA Network's "The 4400" the same actor who starred in "Keen Eddie"? If not, the two could be twins. -Alberta Lane, Sacramento, Calif.

A The resemblance is striking, but no, that's Joel Gretsch playing Baldwin on USA's hit "The 4400." The actor previously had a high-profile role in the Sci-Fi Channel miniseries "Taken." What may be adding to your confusion, however, is the fact that "Keen Eddie" star Mark Valley also appeared (as a character named Lyell) in the first episode of "The 4400."

For the many readers who have asked for news about Valley, he'll be a regular in "Boston Legal," an ABC spinoff of "The Practice" with James Spader. Valley signed on for the David E. Kelley dramedy after an ABC pilot he made, "Harry Green and Eugene," didn't make the cut.

Q I am disappointed that CBS canceled "The Guardian." Does Simon Baker have any new projects lined up? -Eloise via e-mail.

A Yes. Baker stars with Frances O'Connor ("Madame Bovary") and Gregory Smith ("Everwood") in "Book of Love," a comedy-drama awaiting wider release since its January premiere at the Sundance Film Festival. He also stars with Naomi Watts and Sissy Spacek in "The Ring 2," due in theaters in November.

Q A recent episode of "Strong Medicine" noted the passing of Richard Biggs, who played Dr. Milo Morton. What happened? -Joanne Moore via e-mail.

A Biggs, whose previous roles included Marcus Hunter on "Days of Our Lives" and Clayton Boudreaux on "Guiding Light," suffered a fatal stroke on May 22. He was only 44 years old.

Q How many DeLuise boys are there, and are they all in show business? I've seen David, Michael and Peter just on "Stargate: SG-1" alone. -Jo via e-mail.

A Peter DeLuise, a producer on "Stargate: Atlantis" and "Stargate: SG-1," and brothers David and Michael are the only three children of actor Dom DeLuise and his wife, Carol.

Sunday

Ninjas

You've seen them in movies and TV shows, defined by their flying fists and feet and their weapon-throwing skills — but there's a lot more to ninjas than the purely physical. This special considers the training of the Japanese warriors, which may have involved an education in supernatural techniques that allow the fighters to be so lethally effective. Experts on ninjas help separate fact from myth.

Monday

8:30 a.m. and HBO

Movie: Star Wars: Episode II — Attack of the Clones

This chapter of producer-director George Lucas' fantasy saga significantly advances the relationship of Anakin Skywalker and Padme Amidala (Hayden Christensen, Natalie Portman). An assassination plot against Padme — now a senator — reveals a shortage of Jedi knights to protect her, so an army of clones is recruited. "Episode I" co-stars Ewan McGregor and Samuel L. Jackson also return in this 2002 installment.

Tuesday

7 p.m. on FAM

Movie: A Little Princess

Based on a novel by Frances Hodgson Burnett ("The Secret Garden"), this critically acclaimed 1995 film will hopefully garner a wider audience than the select few who previously enjoyed it in theaters. Liesel Matthews stars as Sara Crewe, a 10-year-old whose fanciful imagination captivates her fellow classmates at an oppressive girls school in 1914 New York. Eleanor Bron co-stars as Miss Minchin, the school's harsh headmistress.

Wednesday

11:30 a.m. on TBS

The Cosby Show

It's growing pains for everyone in "Rudy's Retreat." Clair and Cliff (Phylicia Rashad, Bill Cosby) try to figure out why their youngest daughter (Keshia Knight Pulliam) is so moody. Their troubles are added to when Sondra and Elvin (Sabrina Le Beauf, Geoffrey Owens) consider the elder Huxtables as guardians for the twins.

Thursday

12:30 p.m. on HBO

Jim McKay: My World in My Words

The veteran sportscaster who cites "the thrill of victory and the agony of defeat" in the introduction to ABC's "Wide World of Sports" is profiled in this documentary. Rare footage illustrates McKay's reflections on covering such events as the Kentucky Derby and the hostage-taking at the 1972 Summer Olympics in Munich. Arnold Palmer, Jackie Stewart, Peter Jennings and Walter Cronkite comment on McKay.

Saturday

11:15 a.m. on TBS

Movie: Matilda

In Stephen King's take on the unhappy telekinetic girl story, a whole town burned down. Children's author Roald Dahl created a kinder, gentler version, with a pluckier heroine who uses her powers only on those who need a lesson. Mara Wilson plays young Matilda, but Danny DeVito, Rhea Perlman and Pam Ferris steal the show as her crude, neglectful parents and the school principal from hell. Embeth Davidtz also stars.

TV Trivia

David Hyde Pierce ("Frasier") says that as a child, he used to practice dying by throwing himself down a staircase.

Candice Bergen ("Miss Congeniality") had a smaller bedroom and fewer clothes than Charlie, the wooden sidekick of her ventriloquist father.

Humphrey Bogart ("Casablanca") never said, "Play it again, Sam." He said, "You've played it for her. You can play it for me."

Seth Green ("Fat Face") is the only actor cast in both the "Buffy the Vampire Slayer" film and TV series. His movie scenes were cut.

Joss Whedon ("Buffy the Vampire Slayer") is the grandson of a staff writer for "The Donna Reed Show" and "Leave It to Beaver."

Sunday Best Bets

6 p.m. on 6-NBC

XXVIII Summer Olympics

The title of World's Fastest Man is handed out tonight as the 100-meter final is contested. U.S. sprinter Maurice Greene seeks to become the first repeat champion in Olympic track and field's glamour event since Carl Lewis in 1988. Like Lewis, Greene is a three-time world champion in this event, the only man to accomplish that feat. Greene's main challengers include Jamaican Asafa Powell and Kim Collins of St. Kitts and Nevis.

6:30 p.m. on 8-FOX on 25-FOX

Malcolm in the Middle

Stunned to find his girlfriend with Malcolm (Frankie Muniz), Reese (Justin Berfield) signs up for military duty in Part 1 of "Reese Joins the Army." Hal (Bryan Cranston) is confined to the house after refusing to help the FBI get the goods on a co-worker, forcing Lois (Jane Kaczmarek) to work much longer days to keep up the family's income.

7 p.m. on AMC

Movie: The Godfather, Part II

Al Pacino reprises his role as the melancholy Mafia don who tries to remove himself from the criminal underworld. The supporting cast of the 1990 drama includes Andy Garcia, Diane Keaton, Talla Shire, Eli Wallach and Bridget Fonda. Director Francis Ford Coppola's daughter Sofia, seen as an infant in the original "Godfather," also stars.

7:30 p.m. on 8-FOX on 25-FOX

Arrested Development

An anniversary-party speech by Michael (Jason Bateman) has various effects in "Marta Complex." Marta (guest star Patricia Velasquez) comes to realize the depth of her feelings for Michael, while Lindsay (Portia de Rossi) — one of the guests of honor — realizes she wants a divorce. Lucille (Jessica Walter) likes being on her own after Buster (Tony Hale) moves out. Liza Minnelli and Carl Weathers ("Rocky") also guest star.

8 p.m. on 4-CBS

Movie: Pay It Forward

A true story inspired director Mimi Leder's 2000 drama about a youngster (Haley Joel Osment) who tries to make the world better via a simple plan. He suggests that every person do something nice for a complete stranger, who must then do a favor for someone else. Helen Hunt plays the boy's mother, who becomes involved with his teacher (Kevin Spacey).

8 p.m. and DSC

Hot Rod Build-Off

They might have different approaches, but Barry White and Jimmy Shine have a common goal: creating as unique a hot rod as possible. They display their respective skills in Part 1 of this new special, as they devise customized machines for the Grand National Roadster Show. The process doesn't go smoothly for either man, and the tension only builds for them as their deadline nears.

9 p.m. on 26-ABC on 13-ABC

The Days

Pregnancy concerns abound for the Day family as the drama series ends its season with Part 2 of the new episode "Day 1,370." A car accident puts Abby's (Marguerite MacIntyre) unborn child at risk, while Natalie (Laura Ramsey) mulls visiting a clinic to get an abortion. Jack (David Newsom) has an unexpected encounter with Abby's former boyfriend.

9 p.m. on 19-PBS

Mystery!

British actor John Thaw's indelible portrayal of Inspector Morse, which fueled many episodes of this anthology, is recalled with an encore of "Masonic Mysteries." Morse normally is the one who investigates others, but he becomes a suspect himself, believed to have murdered a female friend.

Entourage

Gary Busey plays himself — in none too happy a mood, since Turtle (Jerry Ferrara) lands on his bad side at an art exhibit — in the new episode "Busey and the Beach." Ari (Jeremy Piven) vies with his former assistant (Josh Weinstein), now a rival agent, for the attention of Vince (Adrian Grenier) and company.

XXVIII Summer Olympics

Despite finishing second to rising star Bryan Clay at the U.S. Trials, Tom Pappas enters the start of the decathlon tonight as the United States' top contender for gold. Pappas is the reigning world champion, and on top of that, his Greek ancestry ensures he'll have fans in two countries rooting for him. Also, the United States looks to win its sixth straight 400-meter Olympic final, and gold medals are awarded in the women's 800 meter and men's discus.

7 p.m. on HBO

Movie: Star Wars: Episode II — Attack of the Clones

This chapter of producer-director George Lucas' fantasy saga advances the relationship of Anakin Skywalker and Padme Amidala (Hayden Christensen, Natalie Portman). An assassination plot against Padme — now a senator — reveals a shortage of Jedi knights to protect her, so an army of clones is recruited. The character Yoda and "Episode I" co-stars Ewan McGregor and Samuel L. Jackson also return.

8 p.m. on 4-CBS

Everybody Loves Raymond

Amy's (Monica Horan) brother, Peter (guest star Chris Elliott), becomes a houseguest with no inclination to leave in "Peter on the Couch." Robert (Brad Garrett) does his best to cope with the extended stay, which has a familiar feel given how long he resided with his parents (Peter Boyle, Doris Roberts). An argument finally prompts Ray (Ray Romano) to take Peter home to Pennsylvania.

8 p.m. on 38-WB

Everwood

When Madison (Sarah Lancaster) tells him her roommate is going away, Ephram (Gregory Smith) thinks that's his cue to take his romance with her to the next level in "No Sure Thing." ### Gilmore Girls Lorelai (Lauren Graham) has a showdown with Richard (Edward Herrmann) over his treatment of Jason (Chris Egan), now his ex-business partner, in "Afterboom." Rory (Alexis Bledel) and Lorelai realize the status of the marriage of Emily (Kelly Bishop) and Richard. Luke (Scott Patterson) reveals to Lorelai that he and Nicole (Tricia O'Kelley) are divorcing.

7 p.m. on 6-NBC

XXVIII Summer Olympics

Events at Olympic Stadium remain the focus of tonight's coverage, including what should be a three-way battle in the women's pole vault final between defending Olympic champion Stacy Dragila of the United States and Russians Svetlana Feofanova and world-record holder Yelena Isinbayeva. Also, American Rulon Gardner begins his quest to win another gold in Greco-Roman wrestling. Gardner upset previously unbeaten Alexander Karelin in the Sydney Olympics.

7 p.m. on 19-PBS

Nova

One of the most extensive, expensive rivalries in history involved aviation firms Boeing and Lockheed Martin, which vied to build the latest fighter jets commissioned by the United States military. "Battle of the X-Planes" surveys the design and construction challenges faced by the competition, which resulted in an estimated $1 trillion payoff for the company that ultimately won the contract.

7 p.m. and AMC

Movie: Silver Streak

Only silver-plated, perhaps, yet movie audiences took a shine to director Arthur Hiller's genial 1976 Hitchcock knockoff about a meek executive (Gene Wildier) who accidentally becomes involved in an art thief's bizarre murder plot during a cross-country train ride. Things pick up in the second half; after Richard Pryor shows up for his first (and best) comic teaming with Wildier, Jill Clayburgh also stars.

That '70s Show

In "My Wife," the sitcom's 150th episode, Eric (Topher Grace) is dismayed when Donna (Laura Prepon) buys a trailer for them to live in once they're married. He confesses his doubts about the wedding during his bachelor party. When Kitty's (Debra Jo Rupp) planned bachelorette party for Donna goes bust, the ladies end up at a strip club — where Donna's ex-beau (guest star Luke Wilson) is a featured performer.

8 p.m. on 26-ABC on 13-ABC

According to Jim

Andy's (Larry Joe Campbell) tune about a wealthy client

(guest star Nana Visitor, "Star Trek: Deep Space Nine") changes considerably in "Who's the Boss?" He detests the woman at first, then becomes her new boyfriend — to the astonishment of Jim, Cheryl and Dana (Jim Belushi, Courtney Thorne-Smith, Kimberly Williams-Paisley), who don't believe the new romance will last.

8 p.m. on 38-WB

One Tree Hill

A party in honor of the basketball team, thrown annually by Dan and Deb (Paul Johansson, Barbara Alyn Woods), stirs a variety of emotions in "Life in a Glass House." Lucas (Chad Michael Murray) makes a romantic play for Peyton (Hilarie Burton). Nathan and Haley (James Lafferty, Bethany Joy Lenz) are on the verge of sharing something deeper, until a rumor about Haley surfaces.

XXVIII Summer Olympics

Track and field, diving, the women's triathlon and wrestling dot NBC's prime-time Olympic coverage. Women's finals are held in the 400-meter hurdles; hammer throw and 200 meters; U.S. diver Kimiko Soldati makes her Olympic debut at age 30 when the women's springboard event gets under way; reigning world champion Sheila Taormina leads a deep U.S. triathlon team; and Rulon Gardner is expected to compete for his second gold in the Greco-Roman heavyweight finals.

8 p.m. on 26-ABC on 13-ABC

The Drew Carey Show

Words get in the way for Drew and Kellie (Drew Carey, Cynthia Watros) while they're in bed together in the new episode "Sleeping With the Enemy." Their pillow talk reveals they're diametrically opposed when it comes to politics, causing a chill between them. Mimi and Oswald (Kathy Kinney, Diedrich Bader) clash over party plans.

8 p.m. on 19-PBS

Great Performances

The 10th anniversary of a major Swiss cultural event, boasting many of the world's top musicians, is covered in the new episode "All-Star Piano Extravaganza: The Verbier Festival Concert." Pianists including international greats Emanuel Ax, Evgeny Kissin and James Levine perform in various combinations; among the selections are works by Mozart and Wagner, as well as Bach's Concerto in A minor for four pianos.

8 p.m. on TNN

Movie: Blade Runner

Director Ridley Scott's grim 1982 science-fiction classic boasts Harrison Ford's understated performance as Rick Deckard, the 21st-century police detective chasing "replicants" who look like humans, but have superhuman strength. Rutger Hauer plays the main villain.

9 p.m. on 19-PBS

Closing the Achievement Gap

Charter schools have fueled controversies in some parts of the country, but evidence that they can fulfill their stated missions is supplied by this new documentary hosted by Chicago Tribune columnist Clarence Page. The program visits one such school: the Amistad Academy in New Haven, Conn., where urban youngsters have been educated and inspired to attain the same skills — and grades — as suburban students.

Thursday Best Bets

7 p.m. on 8-FOX on 25-FOX
The Simple Life 2: Road Trip
 Paris Hilton and Nicole Richie find religion, or so their devout new hosts hope, as a four-episode marathon of their cross-country trek begins. The two travelers find it a great challenge to stay on the straight and narrow, especially since profanity is forbidden in their new dwelling. They find some respite on a baseball field, which is where they land jobs with a minor league team.

7 p.m. on 4-CBS
Big Brother 5
 If living in the "Big Brother" house is like a soap opera — and it is, as anyone who has watched this show knows — one of the housemates gets to sample a different brand of soap in this new episode. He or she will make a guest appearance on the long-running daytime serial "The Young and the Restless," and you can bet the novice performer will be greeted with reviews upon returning to isolation with the others.

7 p.m. on 38-WB
Blue Collar TV
 Sometimes it's funny and sometimes it isn't, but matrimony is viewed from the lighter side in the new episode "Marriage." In separate segments linked to the theme, wedded women attend a lingerie fashion event. Jeff Foxworthy portrays an unusual action hero and Larry the Cable Guy offers his distinctly non-traditional version of "Little Red Riding Hood."

7 p.m. on 6-NBC
XXVIII Summer Olympics
 Australian Greg Bennett is looking for redemption. Denied a spot on his country's triathlon team in the Sydney Olympics, Bennett worked his way to the top of the world rankings the past two years, and is one of the gold-medal favorites tonight. He'll have to fight off defending Olympic champion and training partner Simon Whitfield of Canada. Hunter Kemper is the United States' best hope for a medal. Also: finals in men's long jump and 200 meters.

Saturday Best Bets

1 p.m. and AMC
Movie: Once Upon a Time in the West

Regarded by many critics as "spaghetti" Western director Sergio Leone's masterpiece, this 1969 saga is notable for its casting of typical screen good guy Henry Fonda as a savage gunman. His presence means nothing good for a woman (Claudia Cardinale) whose inherited land stands in the way of the railroad for which he works. Jason Robards, Charles Bronson, Gabriele Ferzetti, Jack Elam and Keenan Wynn co-star.

7 p.m. on AMC
Movie: The River

Mel Gibson and Sissy Spacek star as Tom and Mae Garvey, a farm couple who face losing their land when a raging, flooded river threatens to destroy their crops, their home and their livelihood. Director Mark Rydell's ("On Golden Pond") 1984 film also stars Scott Glenn, Shane Bailey and Becky Jo Lynch. Spacek earned an Oscar nomination for her role, as did John Williams for best score.

7 p.m. on FAM
Movie: Good Will Hunting

Robin Williams won his first Oscar for this 1997 drama, and co-stars Matt Damon and Ben Affleck shared a statuette for best screenplay. Will (Damon) is working as a janitor at a university when his amazing talent for math is discovered by a professor who encourages him to use it. But emotional baggage and loyalty to his blue-collar buds have him resisting. A therapist (Williams) with issues of his own attempts to unlock Will's potential.

7 p.m. on NICK
All Grown Up

She'll always be a Rugrat in spirit — despite herself — but Angelica Pickles (voice of Cheryl Chase) marks a milestone by having a significant birthday in the new episode "Lucky 13." She carefully plans a party that leaves Tommy (voice of E.G. Daily) and company out of the celebration, until sinister Savannah (voice of Shayna Fox) hatches a plan to wreck the big bash. Tommy and the others come to Angelica's rescue.

7 p.m. on HBO
Movie: Underworld

Sort of a supernatural "Romeo and Juliet," this strongly visual 2003 horror tale casts Kate Beckinsale ("Van Helsing") as a vampire fiercely committed to her brethren's battle against werewolves — until she falls for a human (Scott Speedman, "Felicity") who's linked to the enemy. At stake is an otherworldly war that could have devastating implications for the entire planet; Bill Nighy ("Love Actually") also stars.
